

Indiana

The percentage of Indiana children participating in an afterschool program has hovered around 10 percent over the past decade, while the national afterschool program participation rate has continued to climb. Close to the national average in 2004, Indiana has slipped further behind other states in 2014, moving from 10 percent to 11 percent in 2014, whereas the national average grew from 11 percent in 2004 to 18 percent in 2014. Although afterschool program participation remains stable, overall parent satisfaction with their child's afterschool program has grown in Indiana. In 2004, 80 percent of Indiana parents were satisfied with their child's afterschool program overall; in 2014, close to 9 in 10 parents are satisfied.
